Our Presidents.

The American Presidential line began in seventeen eighty-nine—
The roll was led by Washington,
Who served two terms, then Adams one;
Jefferson, Madison and Monroe, Enjoyed two terms each, although John Quincy Adams had but one;
With Hickory twice the honor won;
Van Buren was the next enrolled;
Harrison died and left years four;
For Tyler; Polk the burden bore;
Zach Taylor died in year scarce two.
And Fillmore filled the balance due.
The next for a full term was Pierce;
Buchanan had a general chance to serve.
Ab Lincoln, first Republican,
Was shot at his second term began;
And Johnson ended until came Grant;
Who had two terms. Hayes one and scant;
Four months had Garfield who was killed;
And Arthur then the office filled.

An Editor Interviewed.

[Merchant Traveler.]

"See here, Mr. Editor," said an irate woman, coming into the sanctum and leaving the door open, "see here, what's this in your mean little newspaper?"

"Really madam, there is so much in it, considering it's only $2 per year, in advance, with liberal reduction to clubs, that I cannot at the first blush tell you what it is."

"Well, don't talk your jaw off, but tell me what you mean by this reference to my late husband?"

"Ah, madame, the good kind soul who died only yesterday?"

"The same one; you didn't think I was planting one after each meal, did you?"

"Hardly that, madam, but what do you refer to?"

"Why sir, the passage in the obituary where you say 'she was consigned to a roasting place with his fathers.'"

"Ahem, madam, ahem; let me see," and the editor grabbed the paper and gazed intently at the words. "I beg your pardon, madam; it should have been a 'resting place' and if you will come down to the office this afternoon you can have the scalp of any

I will tear it off for you. We can

The Senatorial Caucus.

MONDAY EVENING.

The Senatorial caucus met as usual Monday night and took the 67th, 68th and 69th ballots without changing the status of the dead-lock. Previous to the meeting Monday night Mr. Sweeney had submitted the following proposition: He would step aside let his supporters vote their honest convictions and decide which was the stronger Williams or Blackburn, and then let the hindmost man be dropped and a final ballot be taken between the foremost and Sweeney. This proposition was rejected by both Williams and Blackburn.

TUESDAY EVENING.

The meeting Tuesday night was a stormy one. The roll call showed 118 members present in person and by proxy. As soon as it was completed Mr. Harcourt offered a resolution that hereafter further nominations be permitted at any time. Mr. Offutt spoke in favor of the resolution. Mr. Woods spoke on the opposite side. Then Mr. Owens moved to postpone which brought on a sharp cutting debate between Messrs. Offutt and Owens.

Mr. Harcourt and senators Caudill and Halland spoke against postponement and Mr. Stone is in favor of it and then the caucus fairly "howled" in the intensity of excitement as Offutt and Owens began another spirited debate.

A vote was at last taken and the motion to postpone was lost by a vote of 66 to 55. The motion to permit further nominations then passed by a vote of 68 to 53.

This threw the doors wide open for Carlisle, McKenzie or anybody else who wants to run.

No further nominations were then made but three more ballots were taken. The 7th resulted, Williams 52; Blackburn 47; Sweeney 22—Binford changing from Sweeney to Williams. Sheets from Sweeney to Blackburn and Kimball from Williams to Blackburn. The 71st and 72nd ballots resulted the same as the preceding one, and then the caucus adjourned.

WEDNESDAY EVENING.

The situation was much changed Wednesday night. The proposition previously made by Sweeney was offered in a resolution. This brought on an animated discussion and a deal of filibustering and the caucus passed an amendment dropping the hindmost candidate until a nomination was reached. McKenzie, Carlisle, Oscar Turner and several less important candidates were then put in the field and the caucus adjourned before taking a vote.

Mary Anderson, who is now in London, has scored another triumph as Clarice, in Gilbert's new drama, "Comedy and Tragedy." She has set all London wild with her brilliant success.

Tilden G. Abbott, for ten years cashier of the Union Market National Bank, of Watertown, Mass., absconded Monday, taking with him $31,160 of the bank's funds. He is 40 years old, has a wife and four children, and was a member of the Baptist church. It is believed a woman accompanied him in his flight.

Congressman E. W. M. Mackey, of South Carolina, died suddenly at Washington, Monday. He was a Republican and represented a district where the black vote predominates overwhelmingly. Mackey was married to an octogenarian, who is said to be almost white enough to pass for a white woman. He was given his seat in the last Congress, after a contest. Robt. Small, col., will be a candidate to succeed him.

In commenting on the failure of Western Senators and Representatives to support the Owensboro candidate in the Senatorial caucus, the Messenger says:

"The unkindest cut of all, however, is the course pursued by the Senator and representative from Christian county. If political obligations have any binding force, they know and their people know how the account stands between us, and to their sense of right and wrong and to their idea of common fairness we submit it all."

The SOUTH KENTUCKIAN has no defense to make for the course of Senator Peay. As he is a man of ambition and it may be with aspirations, we can scarcely understand his course. This we do know, however, he is conscientious in what he has done, and no doubt reflects the will of a majority of his constituents, who made up their mind before Mr. Sweeney became a candidate. As Senator Peay started out to support Mr. Sweeney though, we are sorry he saw fit to change, for Daviss has always done the "white thing" for us in Congressional races. As to Mr. Brasher, the Democratic party is not responsible for his actions. He was elected as an independent and does not claim allegiance to the Democratic party, his last affiliation having been with the Greenbackers.

COL. YOUNG EWING.

Compiled from the notes gathered for the history of our country. Any other facts or information of Col. Ewing will be gladly received.

No proper history of the county could be written without conspicuous mention of the Hon. Young Ewing, one of the backwoods politicians who flourished in the early days of the Commonwealth. He was a true pioneer and hunter, as everybody else was then; a surveyor, politician and statesman, and in his Protean capacity he usually had his hands full. He came to Christian county just at a time when he was most needed. An unorganized community of people had, by an act of the Legislature, been placed unto themselves, and there was a demand for men competent to do the work of putting the infant municipality upon its feet. Col. Ewing was a man adapted to the emergency, and took as naturally to the official harness as a duck to the water. He was the first Circuit clerk of the court, and for a quarter of a century or more he served the people in one position or another, and if he did not do much for the county, it did a great deal for him. He had once commanded a regiment against the Indians, and though the campaign was a bloodless one, yet his military record waited him into office over all opposition, just as such things sometimes happen at the present day. It is told of him, but the story may be taken with some allowance, that always when a candidate, particularly if the campaign waxed hot and his election appeared at all doubtful, the Colonel would be seen at public gatherings hobbling about with a cane, or with an arm in a sling, complaining loudly of the hardships of a soldier's life. But no sooner than he was assured of his election away went his cane; to be seen no more until again needed on a similar occasion.

The name of Col. Ewing appears in the records of Logan county in 1792 as one of the first three magistrates for that county, and in 1795 as a representative in the State Legislature. When he came there or where he was from are questions the most diligent investigation has so far failed to solve. It is to be regretted that so little is known or can be learned of his early life, as anything pertaining to so prominent a character could not but be of interest to the reader. He is believed to have been a native of the Old Dominion, and the elements of statesmanship he developed naturally point to him as a son of the "Mother of Presidents." From the humble office of magistrate he essayed and accomplished dizzy flights to higher positions which he filled time and again.

Joe Multahan received a vote for Senator in a joint ballot a few days ago.

Barnum, the showman, has a "white elephant on his hands." It is a sacred elephant of Burnham and costs him $200,000.

"Billy the Kid," alias Jim Foley, notorious gambler, was shot and killed by Henry Hitton, a nephew of Frank James, in a quarrel over a game of cards, at Fort Worth, Texas, last Monday.

The funeral expenses of Congressman Haskell cost the government $3,561. Congressman Mackey's death will furnish another opportunity for a senseless and extravagant waste of the people's money.

The Dawson Rippings, the new paper recently started at Dawson Kys., by Messrs. Crumbaugh, Scott & O'Neal, has been received at this office. It is a six-column folio and is published for $1.00 a year.

"The Peoples Paper" is a new venture in journalism by Griscom, Basquette & Co., at Chattanooga, Tenn. It is devoted to literature and humor and promises fair to rank with the leading papers of its class in the south. The price is only $2.00 a year.

Capt. A. S. Walker, father of Senator Walker, of Allen; Representative Walker, of Simpson; and County Clerk Walker, of Allen county, dropped dead of heart disease, in Scottsville, Monday.

opposed him, and though the "old guard" rallied around him, the new order of things accomplished his defeat.

The above presents in detail a record of the official positions held by Young Ewing, so far as the facts are known to us together with some of his personal peculiarities. Kentucky has produced many remarkable men but none so strongly original, so interesting as the early, simple and honest statesmen of whom Young Ewing was a true type. They borrowed nothing from the books, and if some of them were so illiterate that it amounted to a gift or talent, their honesty of purpose off-set any lack of education and culture. They legislated wholly for the good of the people and the country, and from them the modern statesmen might learn lessons of wisdom.

Col. Ewing long lived one and a half miles from town, on the place now owned by the children of Dr. Shackelford, but for many years was a citizen of Hopkinsville. He was three times married. Of his first wife little is known, except that she bore him one child, a daughter. This daughter married a man named Davison, who was at one time high sheriff of Daviss county, and who it is said, was killed by friends of prisoner whom he had arrested. Col. Ewing's second wife was Winifred Warren, and one of the best women Judge Long says, that ever lived. His last wife was a Miss Jennings. Their marriage to him was, to say the least, ill-assorted. She was an illiterate, uncouth backwoods damsel, scarcely more than eighteen, while he was verging on to his third score and ten years. Soon after his last marriage he moved south, perhaps to the western part of Tennessee, where he died many years ago. No lineal descendant of Col. Ewing is now, so far as known, living in Christian county and only a few of the older citizens remember him. Those that do remember him describe him as a sociable companionable and hospitable gentleman, one who loved his friends, and was never happier than when surrounded by them, and bestowing upon them the hospitality of his home.

He was above the majority of his associates in intellect, but somewhat careless and indifferent in the use of the King's English when pouring forth from the stump one of his hot political campaign speeches. He came among the simple pioneers of Christian county, and waked the echoes of the primeval forests with his rude wild eloquence, and rode in triumph into the affections of the voters to that extent, that he is not known to have been defeated but once in a political contest.

He was above the majority of his associates in intellect, but somewhat careless and indifferent in the use of the King's English when pouring forth from the stump one of his hot political campaign speeches. He came among the simple pioneers of Christian county, and waked the echoes of the primeval forests with his rude wild eloquence, and rode in triumph into the affections of the voters to that extent, that he is not known to have been defeated but once in a political contest.

The following entries appear in the early court records: "The line between Logan and Christian counties was run by Young Ewing and his deputy, Nicholas Lockett, on the part of Christian, and Wm. Reading, surveyor for Logan Co., Aug. 22, 1797." "Young Ewing was allowed £14. 12s, for running the dividing line between Logan and Christian counties." The facts of his having been a surveyor is doubted by some, but the above extract from the county record would imply that he was. That he was or was not, however, is not material to this sketch. We know that he served long, and perhaps, faithfully in other positions. In addition to having been a surveyor, and the first clerk of the county he was cashier of the first bank established in Hopkinsville. He was a member of the constitutional convention held in Frankfort August 17th 1799, and which framed the second constitution of the state. In the year 1800 his name first appears as a member of the legislature from Christian county. He was elected again in 1801 and re-elected in 1802, and again elected in 1806 and in 1807. In 1808 he was elected to the state Senate and again in 1812, in 1816, in 1820 and in 1824, but resigned about a year before his last term expired. In the Presidential campaign of 1824, he was elector for the 5th Congressional district. So great and so universal was his popularity that he was selected to many of those positions without opposition, and generally, when he had an opponent his military record carried him through with flying colors. He was a genial gentleman—a "hale fellow well met" with courteous and social; could take his toddy "with the boys," and "set 'em up" occasionally (all of which goes a long way with the "intelligent voter") but added to his popularity. The last race he ever made for public office, was about the year 1832, for the state senate, and he was defeated. This was a wound to his self-complacency from which he never recovered. He had failed to keep pace with the age. New issues had sprung up beyond his ability to master, new and younger men

SOCIALITIES.

Miss Ella Riggins, of New Providence, is visiting Mrs. Jas. H. Bradshaw, at Longview.

Mr. Chas. W. Metcalfe returned Tuesday from a business trip to Washington City.

Mr. Winston Henry, of Casy, spent several days of this week with his relatives in the city.

Mr. Charles Anderson has been employed as book-keeper at Gish & Garner's drug store.

Miss Lillie C. Waller is now connected with South Kentucky College, in the capacity of art teacher.

Mr. Jno. Q. Thomas, of Cadiz, who has been attending the Evansville Commercial College, returned home this week.

Capt. J. W. Howe, who was formerly a railroad conductor on the road here, but has more recently been in the East, was in the city Wednesday having taken his wife, formerly Miss Cox, to visit her mother at Bellview. Capt. Howe has secured a lucrative position as conductor on a passenger train and will be located at St. Louis in the future. He is an affable and genial gentleman and has our best wishes wherever his duties may call him.

Mr. Jno. B. Bell and family, his son-in-law Mr. Watson and his family, of this vicinity and Mr. Sam B. McGee, a worthy young farmer of Bennettstown, left Wednesday for Texas, to take up their abode. Mr. Bell has been one of our most enterprising, progressive and successful farmers and stock raisers and we regret exceedingly to lose so valuable a citizen from our county. He has sold all his property here and will locate at Abilene, Tex., and run an extensive stock farm. Mr. McGee will locate at Pano. We wish them one and all unbounded success in the "Lone Star" state.

ROARING SPRINGS, KY.

ED. SOUTH KENTUCKIAN:

Seeing interesting communications from many sections of the country I thought at no distant day I might have the pleasure of perusing one from some more able penman than my humble self, but see that my hopes were vain, so here goes a few thoughts from a country rustic.

Marriage market dull, very dull.

Great deal of sickness with some fatality.

Died, at her home, Mrs. Robt. Gary, Dec. 27th, after a long and painful illness. The bereaved family have our heartfelt sympathies.

Died, at his residence Jan 13th, of consumption, Mr. Peter Lewis in his 73d year. Thus another old and highly respected citizen has been called to that long home to meet the loved ones who have gone on before.

Died, little Bell, infant child of Mr. and Mrs. Wick Dawson, of pneumonia. Heart-broken parents let these thoughts solace you:

Dear little fond heart under the snow,
 Somewhere you're waiting for me I know.
 Somewhere your eyes are shining bold,
 And dancing your curly rings of gold.
 You are up in Heaven, this I know,
 Dear little blue eyes under the snow.

Mrs. J. J. Roach is extremely ill.

Mr. Malo Stephens has been very low with pneumonia, now convalescent.

Miss Sallie Gary, who was called home by the death of her mother, is still in our midst, gladdening the hearts of her many friends.

Alex and George Nance have moved to the Purchase, to try their fortunes. May their efforts be crowned with success.

A certain young gentleman from our vicinity, who is now residing in your city we learn is quite homesick for the sight of a Bush.

If this meets with your approbation will write more soon.

A prominent farmer of Longview is a regular subscriber to 19 papers and periodicals.

Dr. Keen, of the Baptist church, will preach his farewell sermon the first Sunday in March.

Harry Webber's Comedy Co. will play "Nip and Tuck" the 5th and "Flint and Steel" the 6th.

The ice blockade has been raised and Evansville mail is now received by the way of Henderson instead of having to go around by Louisville.

Dr. Leavell will sell his place at Salubria Springs, to the highest bidder on Feb. 9. It is a valuable piece of property. Any one desirous of a nice house ought to attend the sale.

Henry Abernathy and Howell Tandy have engaged in the General Fire Insurance business, representing only first-class companies and desire some of your business. Office in Central Warehouse.

The friends of a certain old bachelor, of Longview, had better keep a watchful eye on him. The frequency of his visits to the locality of Organtette is beginning to look suspicious.

Gray & Young, the barbers, have removed their shop to elegant quarters on Main street over Bell's saloon, where they are prepared to do everything in this line of business. See their advertisement in another column.

Mr. M. D. Kelly, the new jeweler, inserts a new and conspicuous advertisement this week. Mr. Kelly has one of the handsomest stores and choicest stocks of jewelry in this end of the State. Read his card elsewhere and give him a call.

A sensational story was sent to the Courier-Journal, from Longview, Tuesday, giving the details of an attack made upon Mr. Horace Buckner by a tramp and stating that the latter's bull dog came to his rescue and killed the tramp. The alleged combat was a canard of the Joe Manhattan order.

Messrs. Henry H. Abernathy and Howell Tandy have embarked in the fire insurance business under the firm name of Abernathy & Tandy. They are industrious and popular young gentlemen and will get a good share of the business in their line.

Sales by Abernathy & Co., Jan. 20th, of 17 Hhds., as follows:

6 Hhds. good leaf, $9 00 to 7 30.

7 Hhds. common leaf $7 00 to 6 75.

4 Hhds. common lugs $6 80 to 6 10.

Market very full on all grades, and especially, so on all samples showing good order.

Sales by Buckner & Wooldridge, of 33 Hhds., as follows:

3 " medium to good leaf $10 50 to 8 00.

12 Hhds., and low leaf $7 70 to 6 90.

18 " common to good lugs $6 80 to 6 00.

Market rules firm. Receipts more liberal for past few days.

Sales by Gant & Gaither of 23 hhds., as follows:

12 hhds. common and medium leaf $8 30 to $6 40.

11 hhds. lugs, $6 75 to $6 05.

Market active and firm especially on common leaf and lugs.

Sales by Buckner & Wooldridge of 10 hhds. tobacco as follows;

4 hhds. common leaf (New) $7 60 to $7 25.

6 hhds. common lugs, $6 35 to $6 25.

Owing to continued hard and cold weather for handling tobacco, receipts and sales continued small; market rules strong and firm for all kinds with lugs a few bids higher.

Coming.

Harry Webber's Comedy Co. will give two performances here next week. On Tuesday evening, Feb. 5, will be presented "Nip and Tuck" which is spoken of by an exchange in the following complimentary terms:

"Nip and Tuck, as played by Mr. Harry Webber and Company is something out of the beaten track of dramatics. It is a play and performance which grows in interest with each succeeding act. The first two acts are essentially dramatic and afford fine scope for intelligent dramatic acting, the last two are brimming over with fun. The two detectives' cross-fire of clever repartees, and no less clever ruses to deceive each other, and the rapid succession of great surprises which alternately startle and amuse the beholder in the last act, make "Nip and Tuck" one of the most enjoyable, as it is, one of the most original entertainments."

"Flint and Steel" will be played Wednesday Feb. 6. It is also a rich Comedy full of fun and entertainment. Don't fail to attend and enjoy yourself. Prices at usual place at 50 and 75 cts.

Col. Young Ewing.

In another column will be found a readable sketch of Col. Young Ewing, one of our early statesmen and politicians. It was written for the history of our county, now in the course of active preparation. Any further facts of interest of Col. Ewing will be gladly received by the editor of the history, and errors in the sketch, if any, will be corrected.

CONCERNING THE BRAIN.

The dog's brain is no larger than that of sheep, and is smaller than the ox's. In the elephant we find that organ weighing three times as much as in man. The whale and other cetace, have brains superior to that of man. When the weight of the encephalon is compared with that of the body, we find that in man it is relatively smaller than in several species of monkey, (the orangutan for example), the sparrow, the tom-tit and the canary. The dog has also relatively less than the bat, the horse than the rabbit. If the circumvolutions or varied and irregular folds noticed on the brain of certain animals are, as some authors consider them, evidences of superiority, it will be found that the ass has fully as many, and the elephant more than man. It is generally admitted that a man whose brain weighs less than 1,000 grams is necessarily deprived of intelligence. Physiologists are not, as yet, agreed on the question as to the age when the brain attains its maximum weight, and as to whether there exists such a period as that when the organ decreases or atrophies. According to Mr. Gratiot, "the brain grows constantly, at least among the Caucasian races, from early childhood to decrepit old age." It is said that Cromwell's brain weighed 2,288 grams; that of Cuvier, 1,829; but these figures, which are not uncontested, prove nothing. Raphael, Deses, Voltaire, Napoleon, Schiller, and many other illustrious men had small heads, and their brains could hardly have greatly exceeded the average weight, which varies from 1,528 to 1,424 grams.

SPECIAL LOCALS.

I'm Going To Tandy's To Get a First-class Elegant Drink,

"AND DON'T YOU FORGET IT."

This cut represents two well-known aristocratic and wealthy merchants of New York, who happened to be on business at the same time, and who met on Main street, and after passing the compliments of the day, and questioned as to where each was going, the portly gentleman answered in the head lines of this article. The place referred to by these gentlemen was the elegant dispensary in the Phenix hotel owned and presided over by that urban gentleman Mr. J. M. Tandy. Mr. Theodore Jones, late of Owensboro, is connected with him and will be found the chief conductor behind the bar. Mr. Tandy has not only a wide-spread reputation for, but does keep one of the finest and best saloons in this section of country. His stock, which consists of wines, liquors, beer, cigars and tobacco, are of the best quality, and the manner in which he entertains you can not be surpassed. Those who are faint and weak and desirous of a toddy to moisten their parching lips should not forget Tandy's. His motto is: "Meet socially, drink moderately and call again." A fine warm lunch is served every day from 10 to 1 o'clock.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

We want fresh, reliable and readable letters from every neighborhood where the SEMI-WEEKLY SOUTH KENTUCKIAN circulates. Give us a news plainly, correctly, briefly and interestingly, without needless comment or oration. If you see, said Dr. Carver, as he deposited a whole sheaf of brightly feathered arrows on a table, took off his umbrella and drew up a chair, "I must be shooting something or other at all the time. If it isn't a Winchester it's a bow and arrow."

"Pretty they are, but most too fine Fancy things these arrows, for handsome young ladies to shoot on grass plots at straw targets. Now, an Indian arrow is a good bit longer—maybe thirty-two inches—and when a Sioux draws it it chock up to the bow it fairly hums when it lets it fly."

"We want them to get groove in it behind the barb—that is to say the ones used in hunting—so that the blood can flow; otherwise the wood would spoil and swell. The fighting arrows are nasty things. The barb is so put on the shaft that when it hits you the steel, or old iron, stays in the flesh when you go to pull out the arrow."

"Dear sakes! what ugly wounds I have seen them make. An Indian boy begins to handle a light bow when he toddles—maybe at 4 or 5 years. His bow is taller than he is. He shoots at most anything around the camp. When he is 12 he uses sharp arrows. A boy must be strong at 18 to use a man's bow."

"Now, a white man who takes an Indian bow for the first time has all he can do to bend it. It wants some strength but more knack. The bow is made straight. When it is strung the cord, even when in tension, almost touches the bow. It is thick, some four and a half to five feet long—that is, their hunting bow—and has extra stiffening by having sinews pasted on it."

"I have seen We-shessa-has-ka—that's the Long Man, and he was the best of Ogallala Sioux—kill an antelope with his arrows at 125 measured yards."

"We-shessa-has-ka was nearly seven feet tall, and a good Indian. On horseback, broadside to a buffalo, I have more than once known that Indian to send an arrow through a big cow. The arrow hung out on the other side."

"The bow for horseback and for war is a trifle shorter, and, maybe, stiffer.
You do not draw the arrow to the eye,
but catch aim as I do when shooting from the hip."

"That can only be acquired by long practice. The string is drawn by the clutch of the whole fingers, though some of the tribes use the thumb and three fingers. The Long Man could shoot an arrow in the air out of sight."

"ALL work and no play makes Jack a dull boy." Very few Jacks will become dull boys if left to themselves.

"Why, you can't buy a cow for two pounds," said the boy, "I sold mine for ten cents a year ago."
